Sustainable seafood is the most environmentally efficient source of protein on the planet. In the United States, wild-caught and farmed fish and shellfish are managed under a system of enforced environmentally responsible practices. Both wild-caught and farmed fresh fish are essential for ensuring sustainable supplies of seafood for the global market.

At Awful Arthur’s Seafood Company, we are taking steps to ensure our children will be able to enjoy the same richness from the sea as we do today. Over the next year, we will be taking steps to become a certified sustainable seafood restaurant.
